SPRING.

, but the house a first

The fubject proposed. Inscribed to the Countess of HARTFORD. The season is described as it affects the various parts of nature, ascending from the lower to the higher; with digressions arising from the subject. Its instance on inanimate matter, on vegetables, on brute animals, and last on man; concluding with a dissure from the wild and irregular passion of love, opposed to that of a pure and happy kind.

The plotter shen to feath o'ce the heath.

OME, gentle SPRING, ethereal Mildness, come, And from the bosom of you dropping cloud, While music wakes around, veil'd in a shower Of shadowing roses, on our plains descend.

O HARTFORD, fitted or to shine in courts
With unaffected grace, or walk the plain
With innocence and meditation join'd
In soft assemblage, listen to my song,
Which thy own season paints; when Nature all
Is blooming and benevolent, like thee.

AND see where surly WINTER passes off,
Far to the north, and calls his russian blasts:
His blasts obey, and quit the howling hill,
The shatter'd forest, and the ravag'd vale;
While softer gales succeed, at whose kind touch,
Dissolving snows in livid torrents lost,
The mountains lift their green heads to the sky.

As yet the trembling year is unconfirm'd,
And WINTER oft at eve resumes the breeze,
Chills the pale morn, and bids his driving sleets
Deform the day delightles: so that scarce
The bittern knows his time, with bill ingulpht

To shake the sounding marsh; or from the shore The plovers when to scatter o'er the heath, And sing their wild notes to the listening waste. 2

Ar last from Aries rolls the bounteous Sun,
And the bright Bull receives him. Then no more
Th' expansive atmosphere is cramp'd with cold;
But, full of life and vivifying soul,
Lifts the light clouds sublime, and spreads them thin, 30
Fleecy and white, o'er all-surrounding heaven.

FORTH fly the tepid airs; and unconfin'd,
Unbinding earth, the moving foftness strays.
Joyous, th' impatient husbandman perceives
Relenting Nature, and his lusty steers
Drives from their stalls, to where the well-us'd plough
Lies in the furrow, loosened from the frost.
There, unrefusing, to the harness'd yoke
They lend their shoulder, and begin their toil,
Chear'd by the simple song and soaring lark.
Mean while incumbent o'er the shining share
The master leans, removes th' obstructing clay,
Winds the whole work, and sidelong lays the glebe.

WHITE thro' the neighb'ring fields the fower stalks, With measur'd step; and liberal throws the grain 45 Into the faithful bosom of the ground: The harrow follows harsh, and shuts the scene.

Be gracious, Heaven! for now laborious man Has done his part. Ye for breezes, blow!

Ye foftening dews, ye tender showers, descend ! 50 And remper all, thou world-reviving Sun, Into the perfect year! Nor ye who live In luxury and ease, in pomp and pride, Think these lost themes unworthy of your ear : Such themes as these the rural MARO sung To wide-imperial ROME, in the full height Of elegance and taste, by GREECE refin'd. In ancient times, the facred plough employ'd The kings, and awful fathers of mankind: And some, with whom compar'd your insect-tribes 60 Are but the beings of a fummer's day, Have held the fcale of empire, rul'd the storm Of mighty war; then, with victorious hand, Disdaining little delicacies, seiz'd The plough, and greatly independent liv'd. 65

Ye generous Britons, venerate the plough;
And o'er your hills, and long withdrawing vales,
Let Autumn spread his treasures to the sun,
Luxuriant and unbounded: as the sea,
Far thro' his azure turbulent domain,
Your empire owns, and from a thousand shores
Wasts all the pomp of life into your ports;
So with superior boon may your rich soil,
Exuberant, Nature's better blessings pour
O'er every land, the naked nations clothe,
And be th' exhaustless granary of a world!

B 3

Non only thro' the lenient air this change,
Delicious, breathes; the penetrative fun,
His force deep-darting to the dark retreat
Of vegetation, fets the steaming Power
At large, to wander o'er the vernant earth,
In various hues; but chiefly thee, gay Green!
Thou smiling Nature's universal robe!
United light and shade! where the sight dwells
With growing strength, and ever-new delight.

FROM the moist meadow to the withered hill, Led by the breeze, the vivid verdure runs, And fwells, and deepens, to the cherish'd eye. The hawthern whitens; and the juicy groves Put forth their buds, unfolding by degrees, Till the whole leafy forest stands display'd, In full luxuriance to the fighing gales; Where the deer ruftle thro' the twining brake, And the birds fing conceal'd. At once, array'd 95 In all the colours of the flushing year, By Nature's fwift and fecret-working hand, The garden glows, and fills the liberal air With lavish fragrance; while the promis'd fruit Lies yet a little embryo, unperceiv'd, Within its crimfon folds. Now from the town Buried in smoke, and sleep, and noisome damps, Oft let me wander o'er the dewy fields, Where freshness breathes, and dash the trembling drops From the bent bush, as thro' the verdant maze

Of fweet-brier hedges I pursue my walk;
Or taste the smell of dairy; or ascend
Some eminence, Augusta, in thy plains,
And see the country, far disfus'd around,
One boundless blush, one white-empurpled shower 110
Of mingled blossoms; where the raptur'd eye
Hurries from joy to joy, and, hid beneath
The sair profusion, yellow Autumn spies:

IF, brush'd from Russian wilds, a cutting gale Rife not, and fcatter from his humid wings The clammy mildew; or, dry-blowing, breathe Untimely frost; before whose baleful blast The full-blown fpring thro' all her foliage shrinks, Joyless and dead, a wide-dejected waste. For oft, engender'd by the hazy north, Myriads on myriads, infect armies warp Keen in the poison'd breeze; and wasteful eat, Thro' buds and bark, into the blackened core, Their eager way. A feeble race ! yet oft The facred fons of vengeance; on whose course Corrofive famine waits, and kills the year. To check this plague the skilful farmer chaff, And blazing straw, before his orchard burns; Till, all involv'd in fmoke, the latent foe From every cranny fuffocated falls: Or featters o'er the blooms the pungent dust Of pepper, fatal to the frosty tribe : Or, when th' invenom'd leaf begins to curl,

With sprinkled water drowns them in their nest;
Nor, while they pick them up with busy bill,
135
The little trooping birds unwisely scares.

Bs patient, swains; these cruel-seeming winds
Blow not in vain. Far hence they keep repress'd
Those deepening clouds on clouds, surcharg'd with rain,
That o'er the vast Atlantic hither borne,
I40
In endless train, would quench the summer-blaze,
And, chearless, drown the crude unripened year.

THE north-east spends his rage; he now shut up Within his iron cave, th' effusive south Warms the wide air, and o'er the void of heaven 145 Breathes the big clouds with vernal showers distent. At first a dusky wreath they seem to rise, Scarce staining ether; but by swift degrees, In heaps on heaps, the doubling vapour fails Along the loaded sky, and mingling deep Sits on th' horizon round a fettled gloom : Not fuch as wint'ry ftorms on mortals shed, Oppressing life; but lovely, gentle, kind, And full of every hope and every joy, The wish of Nature. Gradual finks the breeze Into a perfect calm; that not a breath Is heard to quiver thro' the closing woods, Or ruftling turn the many-twinkling leaves Of aspin tall. Th' uncurling floods, diffus'd In glaffy breadth, feem thro' delufive lapfe

Forgetful of their course. 'Tis filence all, And pleasing expectation. Herds and flocks Drop the dry fprig, and mute-imploring eye The falling verdure. Hush'd in short suspense, The plumy people ftreak their wings with oil, 16; To throw the lucid moisture trickling off; And wait th' approaching fign to strike, at once, Into the general choir. Even mountains, vales, And forests feem, impatient, to demand The promis'd sweetness. Man superior walks 170 Amid the glad creation, musing praise, And looking lively gratitude. At last, The clouds confign their treasures to the fields; And, foftly shaking on the dimpled pool Prelufive drops, let all their moisture flow, In large effusion, o'er the freshened world. The stealing shower is scarce to patter heard, By fuch as wander thro' the forest-walks, Beneath the umbrageous multitude of leaves. But who can hold the shade, while Heaven descends 180 In universal bounty, shedding herbs, And fruits, and flowers, on Nature's ample lap ? Swift fancy fir'd anticipates their growth; And, while the milky nutriment diffils, Beholds the kindling country colour round.

THUS all day long the full-distended clouds Indulge their genial stores, and well-shower'd earth Is deep enrich'd with vegetable life;

Till, in the western sky, the downward sun Looks out, effulgent, from amid the flush 190 Of broken clouds, gay-shifting to his beam. The rapid radiance inftantaneous firikes Th' illumin'd mountain, thro' the forest streams, Shakes on the floods, and in a yellow mift, Far smoking o'er th' interminable plain, 195 In twinkling myriads lights the dewy gems. Moift, bright, and green, the landscape laughs around. Full fwell the woods; their every music wakes, Mix'd in wild concert with the warbling brooks Increas'd, the distant bleatings of the hills, And hollow lows responsive from the vales, Whence blending all the fweetened zephyr fprings. Mean time refracted from you eaftern cloud, Bestriding earth, the grand ethereal bow Shoots up immense; and every hue unfolds, 205 In fair proportion running from the red, To where the violet fades into the fky. Here, awful NEWTON, the diffolving clouds Form, fronting on the fun, thy showery prism; And to the fage-inftructed eye unfold The various twine of light, by thee disclos'd From the white mingling maze. Not so the boy; He wondering views the bright inchantment bend, Delightful, o'er the radiant fields, and runs To catch the falling glory; but amaz'd Beholds th' amufive arch before him fly, Then vanish quite away. Still night succeeds,

A foftened shade, and saturated earth

Awaits the morning-beam, to give to light,

Rais'd thro' ten thousand different plastic tubes,

220

The balmy treasures of the former day.

THEN spring the living herbs, profusely wild,
O'er all the deep-green earth, beyond the power
Of botanist to number up their tribes:
Whether he steals along the lonely dale,
In silent search; or thro' the forest, rank
With what the dull incurious weeds account,
Bursts his blind way; or climbs the mountain-rock,
Fir'd by the nodding verdure of its brow.
With such a liberal hand has Nature slung
Their seeds abroad, blown them about in winds,
Innumerous mix'd them with the nursing mold,
The moistening current, and prolific rain.

But who their virtues can declare? who pierce,
With vision pure, into these secret stores
235
Of health, and life, and joy? the food of man,
While yet he liv'd in innocence, and told
A length of golden years; unsless'd in blood,
A stranger to the savage arts of life,
Death, rapine, carnage, surfeit, and disease;
The lord, and not the tyrant, of the world.

THE first fresh dawn then wak'd the gladdened race Of uncorrupted man, nor blush'd to see

The fluggard fleep beneath its facred beam: For their light flumbers gently fum'd away; 245 And up they rose as vigorous as the sun, Or to the culture of the willing glebe, Or to the chearful tendance of the flock. Mean time the fong went round; and dance and fport, Wisdom and friendly talk, successive, stole Their hours away: while in the rofy vale Love breath'd his infant fighs, from anguish free, And full replete with bliss; fave the sweet pain, That, inly thrilling, but exalts it more. Nor yet injurious act, nor furly deed, Was known among those happy sons of HEAVEN For reason and benevolence were law. Harmonious Nature too look'd fmiling on. Clear shone the skies, cool'd with eternal gales, And balmy spirit all. The youthful sun 260 Shot his best rays, and still the gracious clouds Drop'd fatness down; as o'er the swelling mead, The herds and flocks, commixing, play'd fecure. This when, emergent from the gloomy wood, The glaring lion faw, his horrid heart 265 Was meekened, and he join'd his fullen joy. For music held the whole in perfect peace: Soft figh'd the flute; the tender voice was heard, Warbling the varied heart; the woodlands round Apply'd their quire; and winds and waters flow'd In consonance. Such were those prime of days.

But now those white unblemish'd manners, whence The fabling poets took their golden age, Are found no more amid these iron times. These dregs of life! Now the distemper'd mind, 275 Has loft that concord of harmonious powers, Which forms the foul of happiness; and all Is off the poise within: the passions all Have burft their bounds; and reason half extinct, Or impotent, or else approving, sees The foul diforder. Senfeless, and deform'd, Convulfive anger florms at large; or pale, And filent, fettles into fell revenge. Base envy withers at another's joy, And hates that excellence it cannot reach. 28; Desponding fear, of feeble fancies full, Weak and unmanly, loofens every power. Even love itself is bitterness of foul, A pensive anguish pining at the heart; Dr, funk to fordid interest, feels no more 200 That noble wish, that never cloy'd defire, Which, felfish joy disdaining, seeks alone To bless the dearer object of its flame. Hope fickens with extravagance; and grief, Of life impatient, into madness swells; Dr in dead filence wastes the weeping hours. These, and a thousand mix'd emotions more, from ever-changing views of good and ill, form'd infinitely various, vex the mind With endless from: whence, deeply rankling, grows

The partial thought, a listless unconcern, 301
Cold, and averting from our neighbour's good;
Then dark disgust, and hatred, winding wiles,
Coward deceit, and russian violence:
At last, extinct each social feeling, fell 305
And joyless inhumanity pervades
And petrisses the heart. Nature disturb'd
Is deem'd, vindictive, to have chang'd her course.

Hence, in old dusky time, a deluge came:
When the deep-cleft disparting orb, that arch'd 310
The central waters round, impetuous rush'd,
With universal burst, into the gulf,
And o'er the high pil'd hills of fractur'd earth
Wide dash'd the waves, in undulation vast;
Till, from the centre to the streaming clouds,
A shoreless ocean tumbled round the globe.

THE Seasons since have, with severer sway,
Oppress'd a broken world: the Winter keen
Shook forth his waste of snows; and Summer shot
His pestilential heats. Great Spring, before, 320
Green'd all the year; and fruits and blossoms blush'd,
In social sweetness, on the self-same bough.
Pure was the temperate air; an even calm
Perpetual reign'd, save what the zephyrs bland
Breath'd o'er the blue expanse; for then nor storms
Were taught to blow, nor hurricanes to rage; 326
Sound slept the waters; no sulphureous glooms

Swell'd in the sky, and sent the lightning forth;
While sickly damps, and cold autumnal fogs,
Hung not, relaxing, on the springs of life.

But now, of turbid elements the sport,
From clear to cloudy tos'd, from hot to cold,
And dry to moist, with inward-eating change,
Our drooping days are dwindled down to nought,
Their period sinish'd ere'tis well begun.

And yet the wholesome herb neglected dies; Tho' with the pure exhilarating foul Of nutriment and health, and vital powers, Beyond the fearch of art, 'tis copious blefs'd. For, with hot ravine fir'd, infanguin'd man Is now become the lion of the plain, And worse. The wolf, who from the nightly fold Fierce-drags the bleating prey, ne'er drunk her milk, . Nor wore her warming fleece: nor has the steer, At whose strong chest the deadly tyger hangs, E'er plough'd for him. They too are temper'd high, With hunger stung and wild necessity, Nor lodges pity in their shaggy breast. But Man, whom Nature form'd of milder clay, With every kind emotion in his heart, And taught alone to weep; while from her lap she pours ten thousand delicacies, herbs, And fruits, as numerous as the drops of rain, Or beams that gave them birth : shall he, fair form ! Who wears fweet fmiles, and looks erect on heaven,

E'er stoop to mingle with the prowling herd, 356 And dip his tongue in gore? The beaft of prey, Blood-stain'd, deserves to bleed: but you, ye flocks, What have you done; ye peaceful people, what, To merit death? you, who have given us milk 360 In luscious streams, and lent us your own coat Against the winter's cold? And the plain ox, That harmless, honest, guileless animal, In what has he offended? he, whose toil, Patient and ever ready, clothes the land 365 With all the pomp of harvest; shall he bleed, And struggling groan beneath the cruel hands Even of the clown he feeds? and that, perhaps, To swell the riot of th' autumnal feast. Won by his labour? Thus the feeling heart 370 Would tenderly fuggest : but 'tis enough, In this late age, adventurous, to have touch'd Light on the numbers of the Samian fage. High HEAVEN forbids the bold prefumptuous strain, Whose wifest will has fix'd us in a state That must not yet to pure perfection rife.

Now when the first foul torrent of the brooks, Swell'd with the vernal rains, is ebb'd away; And, whitening, down their mossy-tinctur'd stream Descends the billowy foam: now is the time, 380 While yet the dark-brown water aids the guile, To tempt the trout. Snatch'd from the hoary steed the stoating line,

And all thy stender wat'ry stores prepare.

But let not on thy hook the tortur'd worm,

Convulsive, twist in agonizing folds;

Which, by rapacious hunger swallow'd deep,

Gives, as you tear it from the bleeding breast

Of the weak helpless uncomplaining wretch,

Harsh pain and horror to the tender hand.

The feet led any dive choose. But health your me are

WHEN with his lively ray the potent fur Has pierc'd the streams, and rous'd the finny race, Then, issuing chearful, to thy sport repair; Chief should the western breezes curling play, And light o'er æther bear the shadowy clouds. High to their fount, this day, amid the hills, And woodlands warbling round, trace up the brooks The next, pursue their rocky-channell'd maze, Down to the river, in whose ample wave 400 Their little naiads love to sport at large. uft in the dubious point, where with the pool s mix'd the trembling stream, or where it boils Around the stone, or from the hollow'd bank Reverted plays in undulating flow, 405 There throw, nice-judging, the delusive fly; And as you lead it round in artful curve, With eye attentive mark the fpringing game. trait as above the furface of the flood They wanton rise, or urg'd by hunger leap, 410 then fix, with gentle twitch, the barbed hook :.

Some lightly toffing to the graffy bank, And to the shelving shore flow-dragging some, With various hand proportion'd to their force. If yet too young, and eafily deceiv'd, A worthless prey scarce bends your pliant rod, Him, piteous of his youth and the short space He has enjoy'd the vital light of Heaven, Soft disengage, and back into the stream The speckled captive throw. But should you lure 420 From his dark haunt, beneath the tangled roots Of pendent trees, the monarch of the brook, Behoves you then to ply your finest art. Long time he, following cautious, scans the fly; And oft attempts to feize it, but as oft The dimpled water fpeaks his jealous fear. At last, while haply o'er the shaded sun Passes a cloud, he desperate takes the death, With fullen plunge. At once he darts along, Deep-struck, and runs out all the lengthen'd line; 430 Then feeks the earthest ooze, the sheltering weed, The cavern'd bank, his old fecure abode; And flies aloft, and flounces round the pool, Indignant of the guile. With yielding hand, That feels him still, yet to his furious course Gives way, you, now retiring, following now Across the stream, exhaust his idle rage: Till floating broad upon his breathless fide, And to his fate abandon'd, to the shore You gaily drag your unrefifting prize.

THUS pass the temperate hours: but when the sun Shakes from his noon-day throne the scattering clouds. Even shooting listless languor thro' the deeps; Then feek the bank where flowering elders croud. Where fcatter'd wild the lily of the vale Its balmy effence breathes, where cowflips hang The dewy head, where purple violets lurk, With all the lowly children of the shade: Or lie reclin'd beneath you spreading ash, Hung o'er the steep; whence, borne on liquid wing, The founding culver shoots; or where the hawk, High, in the beetling cliff, his airy builds. There let the claffic page thy fancy lead Thro' rural fcenes; fuch as the Mantuan fwain Paints in the matchless harmony of song. Or catch thyfelf the landscape, gliding swift Athwart imagination's vivid eye: Or by the vocal woods and waters lull'd, And loft in lonely mufing, in the dream, Confus'd, of careless solitude, where mix Ten thousand wand'ring images of things, Soothe every guft of passion into peace; All but the fwellings of the foften'd heart, That waken, not diffurb, the tranquil mind.

BEHOLD you breathing prospect bids the Muse 465 Throw all her beauty forth. But who can paint Like Nature? Can imagination boast, Amid its gay creation, hues like hers? Or can it mix them with that matchless skill,

And lose them in each other, as appear a 470
In every bud that blows? If fancy then.
Unequal fails beneath the pleasing task,
Ah what shall language do? ah where find words
Ting'd with so many colours; and whose power,
To life approaching, may perfume my lays 475
With that sine oil, those aromatic gales,
That inexhaustive flow continual round?

Hang o'dr the fiest ; whence, borne on linedd wings

YET, tho' fuccessless, will the toil delight.

Come then, ye virgins and ye youths, whose hearts.

Have felt the raptures of refining love;

And thou, Amanda, come, pride of my song!

Form'd by the Graces, loveliness itself!

Come with those downcast eyes, sedate and sweet,

Those looks demure, that deeply pierce the soul,

Where, with the light of thoughtful reason mix'd, 485.

Shines lively fancy and the feeling heart:

Oh come! and while the rosy-sooted May.

Steals blushing on, together let us tread

The morning-dews, and gather in their prime.

Fresh-blooming flowers, to grace thy braided hair, 490.

And thy lov'd bosom that improves their sweets.

See, where the winding vale its lavish stores,.

Irriguous, spreads. See, how the lily drinks

The latent rill, scarce oozing thro' the grass,

Of growth luxuriant; or the humid bank,

In fair profusion, decks. Long let us walk, Where the breeze blows from you extended field Of bloffom'd beans. Arabia cannot boaft A fuller gale of joy, than, liberal, thence Breathes thro' the fense, and takes the ravish'd soul. 500 Nor is the mead unworthy of thy foot, Full of fresh verdure, and unnumber'd flowers, The negligence of Nature, wide, and wild; Where, undifguis'd by mimic Art, she spreads Unbounded beauty to the roving eye. 505 Here their delicious task the fervent bees, In fwarming millions, tend: around, athwart, Thro' the foft air, the bufy nations fly, Cling to the bud, and, with inferted tube, Suck its pure effence, its ethereal foul : And oft, with bolder wing, they foaring dare The purple heath, or where the wild thyme grows, And yellow load them with the luscious spoil.

At length the finish'd garden to the view

Its vistas opens, and its alleys green.

Snatch'd thro' the verdant maze, the hurried eye

Distracted wanders; now the bowery walk

Of covert close, where scarce a speck of day

Falls on the lengthen'd gloom, protracted sweeps;

Now meets the bending sky; the river now

Dimpling along, the breezy-russed lake,

The forest darkening round, the glittering spire,

Th' ethereal mountain, and the distant main.

But why fo far excursive? when at hand, Along these blushing borders, bright with dew, 525 And in you mingled wilderness of flowers, Fair-handed Spring unbosoms every grace; Throws out the fnow-drop, and the crocus first; The daify, primrofe, violet darkly blue, And polyanthus of unnumber'd dyes; The yellow wall-flower, flain'd with iron brown; And lavish stock that scents the garden round : From the foft wing of vernal breezes shed, Anemonies; auriculas, enrich'd With shining meal o'er all their velvet leaves; 535 And full ranunculas, of glowing red. Then comes the tulip-race, where Beauty plays Her idle freaks; from family diffus'd To family, as flies the father-duft, The varied colours run; and, while they break On the charm'd eye, th' exulting florist marks, With fecret pride, the wonders of his hand. No gradual bloom is wanting; from the bud, First-born of Spring, to Summer's musky tribes : Nor hyacinths, of purest virgin white, Low-bent, and blushing inward; nor jonquils, 545 Of potent fragrance; nor Narcissus fair, As o'er the fabled fountain hanging still; Nor broad carnations, nor gay-spotted pinks; Nor, shower'd from every bush, the damask-rose. Infinite numbers, delicacies, fmells, 550 With hues on hues expression cannot paint, The breath of Nature, and her endless bloom.

HAIL, SOURCE OF BEING! UNIVERSAL SOUL Of heaven and earth! ESSENTIAL PRESENCE, hail! To THEE I bend the knee; to THEE my thoughts, Continual, climb; who, with a mafter-hand, 556 Haft the great whole into perfection touch'd. By THEE the various vegetative tribes, Wrapt in a filmy net, and clad with leaves, Draw the live ather, and imbibe the dew : 560 By THEE dispos'd into congenial foils, work all all Stands each attractive plant, and fucks, and fwells The juicy tide; a twining mass of tubes. At Thy command the vernal fun awakes The torpid fap, detruded to the root By wint'ry winds; that now in fluent dance, And lively fermentation, mounting, fpreads All this innumerous-colour'd fcene of things.

As rising from the vegetable world

My theme ascends, with equal wing ascend, 570

My panting Muse; and hark, how loud the woods

Invite you forth in all your gayest trim.

Lend me your song, ye nightingales! oh pour

The mazy-running soul of melody

Into my varied verse! while I deduce, 575

From the sirst note the hollow cuckoo sings,

The symphony of Spring, and touch a theme

Unknown to same, the passion of the groves.

WHEN first the foul of love is fent abroad, Warm thro' the vital air, and on the heart 580 Harmonious seizes, the gay troops begin, In gallant thought, to plume the painted wing; And try again the long-forgotten strain, At first faint-warbled. But no sooner grows The foft infusion prevalent, and wide, $85 Than, all alive, at once their joy o'erflows In music unconfin'd. Up-springs the lark, Shrill-voic'd, and loud, the messenger of morn; Ere yet the shadows fly, he mounted fings Amid the dawning clouds, and from their haunts 500 Calls up the tuneful nations. Every copfe Deep-tangled, tree irregular, and bush Bending with dewy moisture, o'er the heads Of the coy quirifters that lodge within, Are prodigal of harmony. The thrush 595 And wood-lark, o'er the kind-contending throng Superior heard, run thro' the sweetest length Of notes; when liftening Philomela deigns To let them joy, and purposes, in thought Elate, to make her night excel their day. 600 The black-bird whiftles from the thorny brake; The mellow bullfinch answers from the grove : Nor are the linnets, o'er the flowering furze Pour'd out profusely, filent. Join'd to these Innumerous fongsters, in the freshening shade Of new-fprung leaves, their modulations mix Mellifluous. The jay, the rook, the daw,

Hung o'er the deep, such as amazing frowns
On utmost * Kilda's shore, whose lonely race
Resign the setting sun to Indian worlds,
The royal eagle draws his vigorous young,
Strong pounc'd, and ardent with paternal fire.
Now sit to raise a kingdom of their own,
He drives them from his fort, the towering seat,
For ages, of his empire; which, in peace,
Unstain'd he holds, while many a league to sea
He wings his course, and preys in distant isses.

Should I my steps turn to the rural seat,
Whose lofty elms, and venerable oaks,
Invite the rook, who high amid the boughs,

While thus the gentle tenants of the shade
Indulge their purer loves, the rougher world
Of brutes, below, rush furious into slame,
And sierce desire. Thro' all his lusty veins
The bull, deep-scorch'd, the raging passion feels. 790
Of pasture sick, and negligent of food,
Scarce seen, he wades among the yellow broom,
While o'er his ample sides the rambling sprays
Luxuriant shoot; or thro' the mazy wood
Dejected wanders, nor th' enticing bud

And oft, in jealous mad'ning fancy wrapt,
He seeks the sight; and, idly butting, seigns
His rival gor'd in every knotty trunk.

What is this mighty Breath, ye fages, fay,
That, in a powerful language, felt not heard,
Inftructs the fowls of heaven; and thro' their breaft
These arts of love diffuses? What, but God?
Inspiring God! who boundless Spirit all,
And unremitting Energy, pervades,
Adjusts, sustains, and agitates the whole.
He ceaseless works alone; and yet alone
Seems not to work: with such perfection fram'd
Is this complex supendous scheme of things.

But, the conceal'd, to every purer eye
Th' informing Author in his works appears:
Chief, lovely Spring, in thee, and thy foft scenes,
The Smiling God is seen; while water, earth,
And air attest his bounty; which exalts
The brute-creation to this siner thought,
And annual melts their undesigning hearts
Profusely thus in tenderness and joy.

STILL let my fong a nobler note assume, Aud fing th' infusive force of Spring on Man; 865 When heaven and earth, as if contending, vie To raise his being, and serene his soul. Can he forbear to join the general fmile Of Nature? Can fierce passions vex his breast, While every gale is pe ace, and every grove 870 Is melody? Hence! from the bounteous walks Of flowing Spring, ye fordid fons of earth, Hard, and unfeeling of another's wo; Or only lavish to yourselves; away! But come, ye generous minds, in whose wide thought, Of all his works, CREATIVE BOUNTY burns With warmest beam; and on your open front And liberal eye, fits, from his dark retreat Inviting modest Want. Nor, till invok'd Can restless goodness wait; your active search 880 Leaves no cold wint'ry corner unexplor'd; Like filent-working HEAVEN, furprising oft The lonely heart with unexpected good.

for you the roving spirit of the wind Blows Spring abroad; for you the teeming clouds Descend in gladsome plenty o'er the world: And the fun sheds his kindest rays for you, Ye flower of human race ! In these green days, Reviving Sickness lifts her languid head; Life flows afresh; and young-ey'd Health exalts The whole creation round. Contentment walks 890 The funny glade, and feels an inward bliss Spring o'er his mind, beyond the power of kings To purchase. Pure serenity apace Induces thought, and contemplation still. By fwift degrees the love of Nature works, 895 And warms the bosom; till at last sublim'd To rapture, and enthusiastic heat, We feel the present DEITY, and taste The joy of God to fee a happy world!

These are the facred feelings of thy heart, 900
Thy heart inform'd by reason's purer ray,
O LYTTELTON, the friend! thy passions thus
And meditations vary, as at large,
Courting the Muse, thro' Hagley-Park thou strayest:
Thy British Tempe! There along the dale, 905
With woods o'erhung, and shagg'd with mossy rocks,
Whence on each hand the gushing waters play,
And down the rough cascade white-dashing fall,
Or gleam in lengthen'd vista thro' the trees,
You silent steal; or sit beneath the shade

Of folemn oaks, that tuft the fwelling mounts Thrown graceful round by Nature's careless hand, And pensive listen to the various voice Of rural peace: the herds, the flocks, the birds, The hollow-whifpering breeze, the plaint of rills, That, purling down amid the twifted roots Which creep around, their dewy murmurs shake On the footh'd ear. From thefe abstracted oft, You wander thro' the philosophic world; Where in bright train continual wonders rife, Or to the curious or the pious eye. And oft, conducted by historic truth, You tread the long extent of backward time Planning, with warm benevolence of mind. And honest zeal unwarp'd by party-rage, BRITANNIA's weal; how from the venal gulf To raife her virtue, and her arts revive. 10 101 Or, turning thence thy view, these graver thoughts The Muses charm : while, with sure taste refin'd, You draw th' inspiring breath of ancient song; Till nobly rifes, emulous, thy own. Perhaps thy lov'd LUCINDA shares thy walk, With foul to thine attun'd. Then Nature all Wears to the lover's eye a look of love; And all the tumult of a guilty world, Toss'd by ungenerous passions, finks away. The tender heart is animated peace; And as it pours its copious treasures forth, In varied converse, softening every theme, You, frequent-paufing, turn, and from her eyes, 940

Where meekened fense, and amiable grace, And lively fweetness dwell, enraptur'd, drink That nameless spirit of ethereal joy, Unutterable happiness! which love, Alone, bestows, and on a favour'd few. 945 Mean time you gain the height, from whose fair brow The burfting prospect spreads immense around : And fnatch'd o'er hill and dale, and wood and lawn, And verdant field, and darkening heath between, And villages embosom'd fost in trees, 1950 And spiry towns by surging columns mark'd Of household smoke, yours eye excursive roains: Wide-stretching from the Hall, in whose kind haunt The Hospitable Genius lingers still, To where the broken landscape, by degrees, Ascending, roughens into rigid hills; O'er which the Cambrian mountains, like far clouds That skirt the blue horizon, dusky rife.

FLUSH'D by the spirit of the genial year,

Now from the virgin's cheek a fresher bloom 960

Shoots, less and less, the live carnation round;

Her lips blush deeper sweets; she breathes of youth;

The shining moisture swells into her eyes,

In brighter flow; her wishing bosom heaves,

With palpitations wild; kind tumults seize 965

Her veins, and all her yielding soul is love.

From the keen gaze her lover turns away,

Full of the dear ecstatic power, and sick

With sighing languishment. Ah then, ye fair!

Be greatly cautious of your sliding hearts:

Dare not th' infectious sigh; the pleading look,
Down-cast, and low, in meek submission dress'd,
But sull of guile. Let not the servent tongue,
Prompt to deceive, with adulation smooth,
Gain on your purpos'd will. Nor in the bower,
Where woodbinds slaunt, and roses shed a couch,
While Evening draws her crimson curtains round,
Trust your soft minutes with betraying man.

And let th' aspiring youth beware of love,
Of the smooth glance beware; for 'tis too late, of
When on his heart the torrent-softness pours.
Then wisdom prostrate lies, and fading same
Dissolves in air away; while the fond soul,
Wrapt in gay visions of unreal bliss,
Still paints th' illusive form; the kindling grace; of
Th' enticing smile; the modest-seeming eye,
Beneath whose beauteous beams, belying heaven,
Lurk searchless cunning, cruelty, and death:
And still, salse-warbling in his cheated ear,
Her syren voice, inchanting, draws him on
To guileful shores, and meads of fatal joy.

EVEN present, in the very lap of love
Inglorious laid; while music flows around,
Perfumes, and oils, and wine, and wanton hours;
Amid the roses sierce Repentance rears
Her snaky crest: a quick-returning pang

Just as he, credulous, his endless cares
Begins to lose in blind oblivious love,
Snatch'd from her yielded hand, he knows not how,
Thro' forests huge, and long untravel'd heaths 1060
With desolation brown, he wanders waste,
In night and tempest wrapt; or shrinks aghast,
Back, from the bending precipice; or wades

The ARGUMENT.

The Subject proposed. Invocation. Address to Mr DODINGTON. An introductory reflection on the motion of the heavenly bodies; whence the succession of the Jeasons. As the face of Nature in this season is almost uniform, the progress of the poem is a description of a summer's day. The dawn. Sun-rising. Hymn to the fun. Forenoon. Summer-infects described. Hay-making. Sheep-shearing. Noon-day. A woodland retreat. Group of berds and flocks. A folemn grove: how it affects a contemplative mind. A cataract, and rude scene. View of Summer in the torrid zone. Storm of thunder and lightning. A tale. The form over, a serene afternoon. Bathing. Hour of walking. Transition to the prospect of a rich wellcultivated country; which introduces a panegyric on GREAT BRITAIN. Sun-fet. Evening. Summer-meteors. A comet. The aubole concluding with the praise of philosophy.

Blue, thro' the dusk, the smoking currents shine; 57 And from the bladed field the fearful hare limps, awkward: while along the forest-glade The wild deer trip, and often turning gaze At early passenger. Music awakes The native voice of undiffembled joy; 60 And thick around the woodland hymns arise. Rous'd by the cock, the foon-clad shepherd leaves his mostly cottage, where with Peace he dwells; And from the crouded fold, in order, drives His flock, to taste the verdure of the morn. 62

FALSELY luxurious, will not Man awake;
And, springing from the bed of sloth, enjoy
The cool, the fragrant, and the silent hour,
To meditation due and sacred song?
For is there aught in sleep can charm the wise?
To lie in dead oblivion, losing half
The sleeting moments of too short a life;
Total extinction of th' enlighten'd soul!
Or else to severally vanity alive,

Wilder'd, and toffing thro' distemper'd dreams? 75
Who would in such a gloomy state remain
Longer than Nature craves; when every Muse
And every blooming pleasure wait without,
To bless the wildly-devious morning-walk?

Bur yonder comes the powerful King of Day, & Rejoicing in the east. The lessening cloud, The kindling azure, and the mountain's brow Illum'd with fluid gold, his near approach Betoken glad. Lo; now, apparent all, Aslant the dew-bright earth, and colour'd air, He looks in boundless majesty abroad; And sheds the shining day, that burnish'd plays On rocks, and hills, and towers, and wand'ring ffreams High-gleaming from afar. Prime chearer Light! Of all material beings first, and best ! Efflux divine! Nature's resplendent robe! Without whose vesting beauty all were wrapt In uneffential gloom; and thou, O Sun! Soul of furrounding worlds ! in whom best feen Shines out thy Maker! may I fing of thee?

"Tis by thy fecret, strong, attractive force, As with a chain indissoluble bound,
Thy system rolls entire: from the far bourne of utmost Saturn, wheeling wide his round of thirty years; to Mercury, whose disk can scarce be caught by philosophic eye,
Lost in the near effulgence of thy blaze.

By thee sublim'd, down to the daily race,

The mixing myriads of thy setting beam.

THE vegetable world is also thine, Parent of Seasons! who the pomp precede That waits thy throne, as thro' thy vast domain, Annual, along the bright ecliptic road, In world-rejoicing state, it moves sublime. Mean time th' expecting nations, circled gay With all the various tribes of foodful earth, implore thy bounty, or fend grateful up A common hymn: while, round thy beaming car, High-seen, the Seasons lead, in sprightly dance Harmonious knit, the rofy-finger'd Hours, The Zephy s floating loofe, the timely Rains, Of bloom ethereal the light-footed Dews, and foften'd into joy the furly Storms. These, in successive turn, with lavish hand, hower every beauty, every fragrance shower, Herbs, flowers, and fruits; till, kindling at thy touch, from land to land is flush'd the vernal year.

Non to the furface of enliven'd earth,
Graceful with hills, and dales, and leafy woods, 130
Her liberal treffes, is thy force confin'd:
But, to the bowel'd cavern darting deep,
The mineral kinds confess thy mighty power.
Effulgent, hence the veiny marble shines;
Hence Labour draws his tools; hence burnish'd War Gleams on the day; the nobler works of Peace 136
Hence bless mankind, and generous Commerce binds
The round of nations in a golden chain.

THE unfruitful rock itself, impregn'd by thee, In dark retirement forms the lucid stone. The lively Diamond drinks thy pureft rays, Collected light, compact; that, polish'd bright, And all its native luftre let abroad. Dares, as it sparkles on the fair one's breaft, With vain ambition emulate her eyes. At thee the Ruby lights its deep'ning glow, And with a waving radiance inward flames. From thee the Sapphire, folid æther, takes Its hue cerulean; and, of evening tinet, The purple-streaming Amethyst is thine. 150 With thy own fmile the yellow Topaz burns. Nor deeper verdure dyes the robe of Spring, When first she gives it to the southern gale, Than the green Emerald flows. THE very dead creation, from thy touch,
Affumes a mimic life. By thee refin'd,
In brighter mazes the relucent stream
Plays o'er the mead. The precipice abrupt,
Projecting horror on the blacken'd flood,
Softens at thy return. The defert joys
Wildly, thro' all his melancholy bounds.
Rude ruins glitter; and the briny deep,
Seen from some pointed promontory's top,
Far to the blue horizon's utmost verge,
Restless, restects a floating gleam. But this,

HALF in a blush of clustering roses lost,

Dew-dropping Coolness to the shade retires;

There, on the verdant turf, or slowery bed,

By gelid founts and careless rills to muse;

While tyrant Heat, dispreading thro' the sky,

With rapid sway, his burning influence darts

On man, and beast, and herb, and tepid stream. 210

Who can unpitying see the slowery race,

Shed by the morn, their new-slush'd bloom resign,

Before the parching beam? So fade the fair,

When severs revel thro' their azure veins.

Sad when he sets, shuts up her yellow leaves,

Drooping all night; and, when he warm returns,

Points her enamous'd bosom to his ray.

Home, from his morning-talk, the fwain retreats = His flock before him stepping to the fold : 220 While the full-udder'd mother lows around The chearful cottage, then expecting food, disal sil The food of innocence, and health ! Now fwarms the village o'er the jovial mead : The ruftic youth, brown with meridian toil, Healthful and flrong; full as the fummer-role Blown by prevailing funs, the ruddy maid, Half-naked, welling on the fight, and all Her kindled graces burning o'er her cheek. Even stooping age is here; and infant-hands Trail the long rake, or, with the fragrant load O'ercharg'd, amid the kind oppression roll. Wide flies the tedded grain; all in a row Advancing broad, or wheeling round the field, They foread the breathing harvest to the fun, That throws refreshful round a rural smell: Or, as they rake the green-appearing ground, And drive the dufky wave along the mead, The ruffet hay-cock rifes thick behind, In order gay. While heard from dale to dale, Waking the breeze, refounds the blended voice Of happy labour, love, and focial glee.

Or rushing thence, in one diffusive band,
They drive the troubled flocks, by many a dog
Compell'd, to where the mazy-running brook
Forms a deep pool; this bank abrupt and high,
And that fair-spreading in a pebbled shore.

Of a near fall of water every sense

Wakes from the charm of thought: swift-shrinking back,

I check my steps, and view the broken scene.

SMOOTH to the shelving brink a copious slood
Rolls fair, and placid; where collected all, 590
In one impetuous torrent, down the steep.
It thundering shoots, and shakes the country round.
At first, an azure sheet, it rushes broad;
Then whitening by degrees, as prone it falls,
And from the loud-resounding rocks below 595
Dash'd in a cloud of foam, it sends alost

A hoary mist, and forms a ceaseless shower.

Nor can the tortur'd wave here find repose;

But, raging still amid the shaggy rocks,

Now slashes o'er the scatter'd fragments, now

Aslant the hollow'd channel rapid darts;

And falling fast from gradual slope to slope,

With wild infracted course, and lessen'd roar,

It gains a safer bed, and steals, at last,

Along the mazes of the quiet vale.

INVITED from the cliff, to whose dark brow
He clings, the steep-ascending eagle soars,
With upward pinions thro' the flood of day;

Deep in the thicket; or, from bower to bower

Now, while I taste the sweetness of the shade, While Nature lies around deep-lull'd in Noon, Now come, bold Fancy, spread a daring slight, 630 And view the wonders of the torrid zone:

Climes unrelenting! with whose rage compar'd, Yon blaze is feeble, and yon skies are cool.

SEE, how at once the bright-effulgent sun,
Rising direct, swift chases from the sky
The short-liv'd twilight; and with ardent blaze
Looks gaily sierce o'er all the dazzling air:
He mounts his throne; but kind before him sends,
Issuing from out the portals of the morn,
The * general Breeze, to mitigate his sire,
And breathe resreshment on a fainting world.
Great are the scenes, with dreadful beauty crown'd
And barbarous wealth, that see, each circling year,
Returning suns and † double seasons pass:
Rocks rich in gems, and mountains big with mines, 645
That on the high equator ridgy rise,

† In all climates between the tropics, the sun, as he pass and repasses in his annual motion, is twice a-year vertical, which produces this effect.

Which blows constantly between the tropics from the cash or the collateral points, the north-east and south-east: caused by the pressure of the rarested air on that before it, according to the diurnal motion of the sun from east to west.

Whence many a bursting stream auriserous plays:
Majestic woods, of every vigorous green,
Stage above stage, high waving o'er the hills;
Or to the far horizon wide disfus'd,
A boundless deep immensity of shade.
Here losty trees, to ancient song unknown,
The noble sons of potent heat and sloods
Prone-rushing from the clouds, rear high to Heaven
Their thorny stems, and broad around them throw 655
Meridian gloom. Here, in eternal prime,
Unnumber'd fruits, of keen delicious taste
And vital spirit, drink amid the cliss,
And burning sands that bank the shrubby vales,
Ledoubled day, yet in their rugged coats
A friendly juice to cool its rage contain.

road o'er my head the verdant cedar wave,

and high palmetos list their graceful shade.

O stretch'd amid these orchards of the fun, 675 Give me to drain the cocoa's milky bowl, And from the palm to draw its fresh'ning wine ! More bounteous far than all the frantic juice Which Bacchus pours, Nor, on its slender twigs Low-bending, be the full pomegranate fcorn'd; 680 Nor, creeping thro' the woods, the gelid race Of berries. Oft in humble station dwells Unboaftful worth, above fastidious pomp. Witness, thou best Anana, thou the pride Of vegetable life, beyond whate'er 685 The poets imag'd in the golden age: Quick let me strip thee of thy tufty coat, Spread thy ambrofial stores, and feast with Fove!

From these the prospect varies. Plains immense Lie stretch'd below, interminable meads, 690 And vast savannahs, where the wandering eye, Unsixt, is in a verdant ocean lost.

Another Flora there, of bolder hues,
And richer sweets, beyond our garden's pride, Plays o'er the fields, and showers with sudden hand Exuberant spring: for oft these valleys shift 696 Their green-embroider'd robe to siery brown, And swift to green again, as scorching suns, Or streaming dews and torrent rains, prevail.

Thrice happy swain! A lucky chance, that oft decides the fate Of mighty monarchs, then decided thine. For lo! conducted by the laughing Loves, This cool retreat his MUSIDORA fought: Warm in her cheek the fultry feafon glow'd; And, rob'd in loose array, she came to bathe 1200 Her fervent limbs in the refreshing stream. What shall he do? But love forbade. Ye prudes in virtue, fay, Say, ye fevereft, what would you have done? Mean time, this fairer nymph than ever bles'd Arcadian stream, with timid eye around The banks furveying, stripp'd her beauteous limbs, To tafte the lucid coolness of the flood. Ah then! not Paris on the piny top Of Ida panted stronger, when aside The rival-goddesses the veil divine 1305 Cast unconfin'd, and gave him all their charms, Than, DAMON, thou; as from the fnowy leg, And slender foot, th' inverted filk she drew ; As the foft touch diffolv'd the virgin zone; And, thro' the parting robe, th' alternate breaft, 1310 With youth wild-throbbing, on thy lawlefs gaze In full luxuriance rose. But, desperate youth, How durft thou rifk the foul-distracting view; As from her naked limbs, of glowing white, Harmonious swell'd by Nature's finest hand, In folds loofe-floating fell the fainter lawn; And fair-expos'd she stood, shrunk from herself, With fancy blushing, at the doubtful breeze Alarm'd, and starting like the fearful fawn? Then to the flood she rush'd; the parted flood 1320 Its lovely guest with closing waves receiv'd; And every beauty foftening, every grace Flushing anew, a mellow lustre shed: As shines the lily thro' the crystal mild; Or as the rose amid the morning-dew, 1325

Fresh from Aurora's hand, more sweetly glows. While thus she wanton'd, now beneath the wave But ill-conceal'd; and now with streaming locks, That half-embrac'd her in a humid veil. Rifing again, the latent DAMON drew 1330 Such madd'ning draughts of beauty to the foul, As for a while o'erwhelm'd his raptur'd thought With luxury too-daring. Check'd, at laft, By love's respectful modesty, he deem'd The theft profane, if aught profane to love 1335 Can e'er be deem'd; and, ftruggling from the shade, With headlong hurry fled : but first these lines, Trac'd by his ready pencil, on the bank With trembling hand he threw. "Bathe on, my fair, "Yet unbeheld fave by the facred eye 1340 " Of faithful love : I go to guard thy haunt, "To keep from thy recess each vagrant foot, " And each licentious eye." With wild furprife, As if to marble struck, devoid of fense, A stupid moment motionless she stood: 1345 So stands the * statue that inchants the world, So bending tries to veil the matchless boast, The mingled beauties of exulting Greece. Recovering, fwift she slew to find those robes Which blifsful Eden knew not; and, array'd 1350 In careless haste, th' alarming paper snatch'd. THE fun has lost his rage: his downward orb 1370 hoots nothing now but animating warmth, and vital lustre; that, with various ray, ights up the clouds, those beauteous robes of heaven, cessant roll'd into romantic shapes, he dream of waking fancy! Broad below, 1375 over'd with ripening fruits, and swelling fast to the perfect year, the pregnant earth and all her tribes rejoice. In lovely contrast to this glorious view Calmly magnificent, then will we turn To where the filver THAMES first rural grows. There let the feasted eye unwearied stray : Luxurious, there, rove thro' the pendent woods That nodding hang o'er HARRINGTON's retreat; And, stooping thence to Ham's embowering walks, Beneath whose shades, in spotless peace retir'd, 1420 With HER the pleasing partner of his heart, The worthy QUEENSB'RY yet laments his GAY, And polish'd CORNBURY wooes the willing Muse, Slow let us trace the matchless VALE of THAMES; Fair-winding up to where the Muses haunt In Twit'nam's bowers, and for their Pope implore The healing God + ; to royal Hampton's pile, To Clermont's terrass'd height, and Efter's groves, Where in the fweetest folitude, embrac'd By the foft windings of the filent Mole, 1430 From courts and fenates PELHAM finds repose. RICH is thy soil, and merciful thy clime; 1445
Thy streams unfailing in the summer's drought;
Unmatch'd thy guardian-oaks; thy valleys float
With golden waves: and on thy mountains flocks
Bleat numberless; while, roving round their sides,
Bellow the blackening herds in lusty droves. 1450
Beneath, thy meadows glow, and rise unquell'd
Against the mower's scythe. On every hand
Thy villa's shine. Thy country teems with wealth;
And property assures it to the swain,
Pleas'd, and unweary'd, in his guarded toil. 1455

Like the red rose-bud moist with morning-dew,
Breathing delight; and, under slowing jet,

Onslow! the Mule, ambitious of thy name,
To grace, inspire, and dignify her song,
Would from the public voice thy gentle ear
A while engage. Thy noble cares she knows,
The patriot-virtues that distend thy thought,
pread on thy front, and in thy bosom glow;
While listening senates hang upon thy tongue,
Devolving thro' the maze of eloquence
A roll of periods, sweeter than her song.
Out she too pants for public virtue, she,
Tho' weak of power, yet strong in ardent will,
Whene'er her country rulhes on her heart,
To shumes a bolder note, and sondly tries
To mix the patriot's with the poet's slame.

WHEN the bright Virgin gives the beauteous days, And Libra weighs in equal scales the year; From heaven's high cope the fierce effulgence shook Of parting Summer, a ferener blue, With golden light enliven'd wide invests The happy world. Attemper'd funs arise, Sweet-beam'd, and shedding oft thro' lucid clouds A pleasing calm; while broad, and brown, below to Extensive harvests hang the heavy head. Rich, filent, deep, they fland; for not a gale Rolls its light billows o'er the bending plain : A calm of plenty! till the ruffled air Falls from its poife, and gives the breeze to blow. 35 Rent is the fleecy mantle of the fky; The clouds fly different; and the fudden fun By fits effulgent gilds th' illumin'd field, And black by fits the shadows sweep along. Aghaft, and comfortiefs, when the bleak north, 60 With Winter charg'd, let the mix'd tempest fly, Hail, rain, and fnow, and bitter-breathing frost: Then to the shelter of the hut he sled; And the wild feafon, fordid, pin'd away. For home he had not; home is the refort 65 Of love, of jey, of peace and plenty, where, Supporting, and supported, polish'd friends, And dear relations mingle into blifs. But this the rugged favage never felt, Even desolate in crouds; and thus his days Roll'd heavy, dark, and unenjoy'd along: A waste of time! till INDUSTRY approach'd, And rous'd him from his miferable floth : His faculties unfolded; pointed out, Where lavish Nature the directing hand 75 Of Art demanded; shew'd him how to raise His feeble force by the mechanic powers, To dig the mineral from the vaulted earth, On what to turn the piercing rage of fire,

On what the torrent, and the gather'd blaft; Gave the tall ancient forest to his axe; Taught him to chip the wood, and hew the stone, Till by degrees the finish'd fabric rose; Tore from his limbs the blood-polluted fur, And wrapt them in the woolly vestment warm, 80 Or bright in gloffy filk, and flowing lawn; With wholesome viands fill'd his table, pour'd The generous glass around, inspir'd to wake The life-refining foul of decent wit: Nor stopp'd at barren bare necessity; 90 But still advancing bolder, led him on To pomp, to pleasure, elegance, and grace; And, breathing high ambition thro' his foul, Set science, wisdom, glory, in his view, And bade him be the Lord of all below. 95

· THEN gathering men their natural powers combin't And form'd a Public; to the general good Submitting, aiming, and conducting all. For this the Patriot-council met, the full, The free, and fairly-represented Whole; 100 For this they plann'd the holy guardian laws, Distinguish'd orders, animated arts, And with joint force Oppression chaining, set Imperial Justice at the helm; yet still To them accountable: nor flavish dream'd 105 That toiling millions must resign their weal,

Exalts, embellishes, and renders life
Delightful. Pensive Winter chear'd by him
Sits at the social fire, and happy hears
Th' excluded tempest idly rave along;
His harden'd fingers deck the gaudy spring;
Without him Summer were an arid waste;
Nor to th' autumnal months could thus transmit
Those full, mature, immeasurable stores,

Soon as the morning trembles o'er the sky,
And, unperceiv'd, unfolds the spreading day;
Before the ripened field the reapers stand,
In fair array; each by the lass he loves,
To bear the rougher part, and mitigate
By nameless gentle offices her toil.
At once they stoop and swell the lusty sheaves;
While thro' their chearful band the rural talk,
The rural scandal, and the rural jest,
Fly harmless, to deceive the tedious time,

And fleal unfelt the fultry hours away. Behind the master walks, builds up the shocks; And, conscious, glancing oft-on every side His fated eye, feels his heart heave with joy. The gleaners spread around, and here and there, 165 Spike after spike, their scanty harvest pick. Be not too narrow, husbandmen! but fling From the full sheaf, with charitable stealth, The liberal handful. Think, oh grateful think! How good the God of HARVEST is to you; Who pours abundance o'er your flowing fields; While these unhappy partners of your kind Wide-hover round you, like the fowls of heav'n, And ask their humble dole. The various turns Of fortune ponder; that your fons may want What now, with hard reluctance, faint, ye give.

The lovely young Lavinia once had friends;
And fortune smil'd, deceitful, on her birth.
For, in her helpless years depriv'd of all,
Of every stay, save Innocence and Heaven,
She with her widow'd mother, feeble, old,
And poor, liv'd in a cottage, far retir'd
Among the windings of a woody vale;
By solitude and deep surrounding shades,
But more by bashful modesty, conceal'd.
Together thus they shunn'd the cruel scorn
Which virtue, sunk to poverty, would meet
From giddy passion and low-minded pride;
Almost on Nature's common bounty sed;

Like the gay birds that fung them to repose, 100 Content, and careless of to-morrow's fare. Her form was fresher than the morning-rose, When the dew wets its leaves; unstain'd, and pure, As is the lily, or the mountain-fnow. The modest virtues mingled in her eyes, 195 Still on the ground dejected, darting all Their humid beams into the blooming flowers: Or when the mournful tale her mother told, Of what her faithless fortune promis'd once, Thrill'd in her thought, they, like the dewy ftar 200 Of evening, shone in tears. A native grace Sat fair-proportion'd on her polish'd limbs, Veil'd in a fimple robe, their best attire, Beyond the pomp of dress; for loveliness Needs not the foreign aid of ornament, 205 But is when unadorn'd adorn'd the most. Thoughtless of beauty, she was beauty's felf, Recluse amid the close-embowering woods. As in the hollow breaft of Appenine, Beneath the shelter of incircling hills, 210 A myrtle rifes, far from human eye, And breathes its balmy fragrance o'er the wild; So flourish'd blooming, and unseen by all, The fweet LAVINIA; till, at length, compell'd By strong necessity's supreme command, 215 With smiling patience in her looks, she went To glean PALEMON's fields. The pride of swains PALEMON was, the generous, and the rich; Who led the rural life in all its joy

Here ceas'd the youth: yet still his speaking eye
Express'd the sacred triumph of his soul,

With conscious virtue, gratitude, and love,

Above the vulgar joy divinely rais'd.

Nor waited he reply. Won by the charm

Of goodness irresistible, and all

In sweet disorder lost, she blush'd consent.

The news immediate to her mother brought,

While, pierc'd with anxious thought, she pin'd away

The lonely moments for Lavinia's fate;

Amaz'd, and scarce believing what she heard,

Joy sciz'd her wither'd veins, and one bright gleam

Of fetting life shone on her evening-hours:
Not less enraptur'd than the happy pair;
Who slourish'd long in tender bliss, and rear'd
A numerous offspring, lovely like themselves,
And good, the grace of all the country round.

DEFEATING oft the labours of the year, The fultry fouth collects a potent blaft. At first, the groves are scarcely seen to stir Their trembling tops; and a still murmur runs Along the fost-inclining fields of corn. 315 But as the aerial tempest fuller swells, And in one mighty fream, invisible, Immense, the whole excited atmosphere, Impetuous rushes o'er the founding world; Strain'd to the root, the stooping forest pours 320 A ruftling shower of yet untimely leaves. High-beat, the circling mountains eddy in. From the bare wild, the diffipated florm, And fend it in a torrent down the vale. Expos'd, and naked, to its utmost rage, 325 Thro' all the fea of harvest rolling round, The billowy plain floats wide; nor can evade, Tho' pliant to the blaft, its feizing force; Or whiel'd in air, or into vacant chaff Shook wafte. And sometimes too a burst of rain, Swept from the black horizon, broad, descends In one continuous flood. Still over head The mingling tempest weaves its gloom, and still The deluge deepens; till the fields around

Lie funk, and flatted, in the fordid wave. 335 Sudden, the ditches swell; the meadows swim. Red, from the hills, innumerable streams Tumultuous roar; and high above its banks The river lift; before whose rushing tide, 339 Herds, flocks, and harvests, cottages, and swains, Roll mingled down; all that the winds had spar'd In one wild moment ruin'd; the big hopes, And well-earn'd treasures of the painful year. Fled to some eminence, the husbandman Helpless beholds the miserable wreck 345 Driving along; his drowning ox at once Descending, with his labours scatter'd round, He fees; and instant o'er his shivering thought Comes Winter unprovided, and a train Of clamant children dear. Ye masters, then, Be mindful of the rough laborious hand, That finks you foft in elegance and eafe; Be mindful of those limbs in russet clad Whose toil to yours is warmth, and graceful pride; And oh be mindful of that sparing board, Which covers yours with luxury profuse, Makes your glass sparkle, and your sense rejoice! Nor cruelly demand what the deep rains, And all-involving winds have fwept away.

Here the rude clamour of the sportsman's joy, 360. The gun fast-thundering, and the winded horn, Would tempt the muse to sing the rural game: How, in his mid-career, the spaniel struck,

And the Denne bad walks a direct

Stiff, by the tainted gale, with open nofe, Outstretch'd, and finely sensible, draws full, 365 Fearful, and cautious, on the latent prey; As in the fun the circling covey balk Their varied plumes, and watchful every way, Thro' the rough stubble turn the secret eye. Caught in the meshy fnare, in vain they beat 370 Their idle wings, intangled more and more: Nor on the furges of the boundless air, Tho' borne triumphant, are they fafe; the gun. Glanc'd just, and fudden, from the fowler's eye O'ertakes their founding pinions; and again, Immediate, brings them from the towering wing, Dead to the ground; or drives them wide-dispers'd. Wounded, and wheeling various, down the wind.

THESE are not subjects for the peaceful muse, Nor will the stain with fuch her spotless fong; Then most delighted, when she social sees The whole mix'd animal-creation round Alive, and happy. 'Tis no joy to her, This falfely-chearful barbarous game of death; This rage of pleasure, which the restless youth Awakes, impatient, with the gleaming morn; When beafts of prey retire, that all night long, Urg'd by necessity, had rang'd the dark, As if their conscious ravage shunn'd the light, Asham'd. Not so the steady tyrant man, Who with the thoughtless infolence of power Inflam'd, beyond the most infuriate wrath

Of the worst monster that e'er roam'd the waste,
For sport alone pursues the cruel chace,
Amid the beamings of the gentle days.

Upbraid, ye ravening tribes, our wanton rage,
For hunger kindles you, and lawless want;
But lavish fed, in Nature's bounty roll'd,
To joy at anguish, and delight in blood,
Is what your horrid bosoms never knew.

Poor is the triumph o'er the timid hare! Scar'd from the corn, and now to some lone seat Retir'd: the rushy fen; the ragged furze, Stretch'd o'er the stony heath; the stubble chapt; The thiftly lawn; the thick intangled broom; 405 Of the same friendly hue, the wither'd fern; The fallow ground laid open to the fun, Concoctive; and the nodding fandy bank, Hung o'er the mazes of the mountain-brook. Vain is her best precaution; the' she sits Conceal'd, with folded years; unfleeping eyes, By Nature rais'd to take the horizon in stage of the land And head couch'd close betwixt her hairy feet, In act to fpring away. The scented dew Betrays her early labyrinth; and deep, In scatter'd sullen openings, far behind, With every breeze the hears the coming florm. But nearer, and more frequent, as it loads The fighing gale, the springs amaz'd, and all The favage foul of game is up at once: The pack full-opening, various; the fhrill hora

Resounded from the hills; the neighing steed, Wild for the chace; and the loud hunter's shout; O'er a weak, harmless, flying creature, all Mix'd in mad tumult, and discordant joy.

THE stag too, singled from the herd, where long He rang'd the branching monarch of the shades, Before the tempest drives. At first, in speed He, sprightly, puts his faith; and, rous'd by fear, Gives all his swift aerial foul to flight; 1 10 410 Against the breeze he darts, that way the more To leave the leffening murderous cry behind: Deception fhort! the fleeter than the winds Blown o'er the keen-air'd mountain by the north. He burfts the thickets, glances thro' the glades, 436 And plunges deep into the wildest wood. If flow, yet fure, adhefive to the track Hot-steaming, up behind him come again Th' inhuman rout, and from the shady depth Expel him, circling thro' his every shift. He sweeps the forest oft; and sobbing fees The glades, mild opening to the golden day; Where, in kind contest, with his butting friends He wont to struggle, or his loves enjoy. Oft in the full-descending flood he tries To lofe the scent, and lave his burning fides: Oft feeks the herd; the watchful herd, alarm'd, With felfish care avoid a brother's wo. What shall he do? His once so vivid nerves, So full of buoyant spirit, now no more

And pavement, faithless to the fuddled foot. Thus as they fwim in mutual fwill, the talk, Vociferous at once from twenty tongues, Reels fast from theme to theme; from horses, hounds, To church or mistress, politics or ghost, In endless mazes, intricate, perplex'd. Mean time, with fudden interruption, loud, Th' impatient catch bursts from the joyous heart; That moment touch'd is every kindred foul; And, opening in a full-mouth'd cry ofijoy, The laugh, the flap, the jocund curse go round; While, from their flumbers shook, the kennel'd hounds Mix in the music of the day again. As when the tempest, that has vex'd the deep 550 The dark night long, with fainter murmurs falls : So gradual finks their mirth. Their feeble tongues, Unable to take up the cumbrous word, Lie quite dissolv'd. Before their maudlin eyes, Seen dim, and blue, the double tapers dance, 555 Like the fun wading thro' the mifty fky. Then, fliding foft, they drop. Confus'd above, Glasses and bottles, pipes and gazetteers, As if the table even itself was drunk, 560 Lie a wet broken scene; and wide, below, Is heap'd the focial flaughter: where aftride The lubber Power in filthy triumph fits, Slumbrous, inclining still from fide to fide, And steeps them drench'd in potent sleep till morn. Outlives them all; and from his bury'd flock Retiring, full of rumination fad, Laments the weakness of these latter times.

But if the rougher fex by this fierce fport Is hurried wild, let not fuch horrid joy E'er stain the bosom of the BRITISH FAIR. Far be the spirit of the chace from them! Uncomely courage, unbefeeming skill; To fpring the fence, to rein the prancing fleed; 575 The cap, the whip, the masculine attire, In which they roughen to the fense, and all The winning foftness of their fex is loft. In them 'tis graceful to dissolve at wo; With every motion, every word, to wave Quick o'er the kindling cheek, the ready blush; And from the fmallest violence to shrink. Unequal, then the lovelieft in their fears; And by this filent adulation, foft, To their protection more engaging Man. 585 O may their eyes no miserable fight, Save weeping lovers, fee! a nobler game, Thro' Love's inchanting wiles purfu'd, yet fled, In chace ambiguous. May their tender limbs Float in the loofe fimplicity of drefs! 590 And, fashion'd all to harmony, alone Know they to seize the captivated foul, In rapture warbled from love-breathing lips; To teach the lute to languish; with smooth step,

Disclosing motion in its every charm, 595 To fwim along, and fwell the mazy dance; To train the foliage o'er the fnowy lawn; To guide the pencil, turn the tuneful page; To lend new flavour to the fruitful year, And heighten Nature's dainties; in their race 600 To rear their graces into fecond life; To give fociety its highest taste; Well-ordered home Man's best delight to make; And by submissive wisdom, modest skill, With every gentle care-eluding art, 600 To raise the virtues, animate the blis, And sweeten all the toils of human life : This be the female dignity, and praise.

TURN we a moment Fancy's rapid flight To vigorous foils, and climes of fair extent; Where, by the potent fun elated high, The vineyard fwells refulgent on the day; 600 Spreads o'er the vale; or up the mountain climbs, Profuse; and drinks amid the sunny rocks, From cliff to cliff increas'd, the heightened blaze. Low bend the weighty boughs. The clusters clear, Half thro' the foliage feen; or ardent flame, 600 Or shine transparent; while perfection breathes White o'er the turgent film the living dew. As thus they brighten with exalted juice, Touch'd into flavour by the mingling ray; The rural youth and virgins o'er the field, Each fond for each to cull th' autumnal prime, Exulting rove, and speak the vintage nigh. Then comes the crushing fwain; the country floats, And foams unbounded with the mashy flood :.. That by degrees fermented, and refin'd, 705 Round the rais'd nations pours the cup of joy: The claret smooth, red as the lip we press In sparkling fancy, while we drain the bowl; The mellow-taffed burgundy; and quick, As is the wit it gives, the gay champaign.

Now, by the cool declining year condens'd, Descend the copious exhalations, check'd As up the middle sky unseen they stole, And roll the doubling fogs around the hill.

No more the mountain, horrid, vast, sublime,

Who pours a fweep of rivers from his fides, And high between contending kingdoms rears The rocky long division, fills the view With great variety; but in a night Of gathering vapour, from the baffled fense Sinks dark and dreary. Thence expanding far, The huge dusk, gradual, swallows up the plain: Vanish the woods: the dim-seen river seems Sullen, and flow, to roll the mifty wave. Even in the height of noon oppress'd, the fun Sheds weak, and blunt, his wide refracted ray; Whence glaring oft, with many a broaden'd orb, He frights the nations. Indistinct on earth. Seen thro' the turbid air, beyond the life Objects appear; and, wilder'd, o'er the waste The shepherd stalks gigantic. Till at last Wreath'd dun around, in deeper circles still Successive closing, fits the general fog Unbounded o'er the world; and, mingling thick, A formless grey confusion covers all. As when of old (fo fung the HEBREW BARD) Light, uncollected, thro' the chaos urg'd Its infant way; nor order yet had drawn His lovely train from out the dubious gloom.

THESE roving mists, that constant now begin 740 To smoke along the hilly country, these, With weighty rains, and melted Alpine snows, The mountain-cisterns fill, those ample stores Of water, scoop'd among the hollow rocks;

Whence gush the streams, the ceaseless fountains play, And their unfailing wealth the rivers draw. Some fages fay, that, where the numerous wave For ever lashes the resounding shore, Drill'd thro' the fandy ftratum, every way, The waters with the fandy ftratum rife; Amid whose angles infinitely strain'd, They joyful leave their jaggy falts behind, And clear and fweeten, as they foak along. Nor stops the reftless fluid, mounting still, Though oft amidst th' irriguous vale it springs; But to the mountain courted by the fand. That leads it darkling on in faithful maze, Far from the parent-main, it boils again Fresh into day; and all the glittering hill Is bright with spouting rills. But hence this vain 760 Amusive dream! why should the waters love To take fo far a journey to the hills, When the fweet valleys offer to their toil Inviting quiet, and a nearer bed? Or if, by blind ambition led affray, They must aspire; why should they sudden stop Among the broken mountain's rushy dells, And, ere they gain its highest peak, desert Th' attractive fand that charm'd their course so long Besides, the hard agglomerating falts, The fpoil of ages, would impervious choak Their fecret channels; or, by flow degrees, High as the hills protrude the swelling vales: Old Ocean too, fuck'd thro' the porous globe,

Had long ere now forfook his horrid bed, And brought Deucalion's wat'ry times again.

The flork-assembly meets; for many a day,
Consulting deep, and various, ere they take
Their arduous voyage thro' the liquid sky.
And now their route design'd, their leaders chose, 860
Their tribes adjusted, clean'd their vigorous wings;
And many a circle, many a short essay,
Wheel'd round and round, in congregation sull
The sigur'd slight ascends; and, riding high
The aerial billows, mixes with the clouds.

On where the Northern ocean, in vaft whirls,
Boils round the naked melancholy isles
Of farthest Thule, and the Atlantic surge
Pours in among the stormy Hebrides;
Who can recount what transmigrations there
Are annual made? what nations come and go?
And how the living clouds on clouds arise?
Infinite wings! till all the plume dark air,
And rude resounding shore are one wild cry.

HERE the plain harmless native his small flock,
And herd diminutive of many hues,
876
Tends on the little island's verdant swell,
The shepherd's sea-girt reign; or, to the rocks
Dire-clinging, gathers his ovarious food;
Or sweeps the fishy shore; or treasures up
The plumage, rising full, to form the bed
Of luxury. And here a while the Muse,
High-hovering o'er the broad cerulean scene,
Sees Caledonia, in romantic view:

Her airy mountains, from the waving main, Invested with a keen diffusive sky, Breathing the foul acute; her forests huge, Incult, robust, and tall, by Nature's hand Planted of old; her azure lakes between, Pour'd out extensive, and of wat'ry wealth 800 Full: winding deep, and green, her fertile vales; With many a cool transfucent brimming flood Wash'd lovely, from the Tweed (pure parent fream, Whose pastoral banks first heard my Doric reed, With, filvan Jed, thy tributary brook), 895 To where the north-inflated tempest foams O'er Orca's or Betubium's highest peak : Nurse of a people, in misfortune's school Train'd up to hardy deeds; foon visited By Learning, when before the Gothic rage 900 She took her western slight. A manly race, Of unsubmitting spirit, wise and brave; Who still thro' bleeding ages struggled hard, (As well unhappy WALLACE can attest, Great patriot-hero! ill requited chief!), 905 To hold a generous undiminish'd state; Too much in yain! Hence of unequal bounds Impatient, and by tempting glory borne O'er every land, for every land their life Has flow'd profuse, their piercing genius plann'd. 910 And fwell'd the pomp of peace their faithful toil. OH is there not some patriot, in whose power That best, that godlike Luxury is plac'd, Of bleffing thousands; thousands yet unborn, Thro' late posterity? fome, large of foul, To chear dejected industry? to give A double harvest to the pining swain? And teach the labouring hand the fweets of toil? 920 How, by the finest art, the native robe To weave; how, white as hyperborean fnow, To form the lucid lawn; with venturous oar How to dash wide the billow; nor look on. But fee the fading many-colour'd woods. Shade deepening over strade, the country round 955 Imbrown; a crouded umbrage, dusk, and dun, Of every hue, from wan declining green To footy dark. These now the lonesome Muse, Low-whispering, lead into their leaf-strown walks, And give the feafon in its latest view.

THE western fun withdraws the shorten'd day; And humid evening, gliding o'er the fky, In her chill progress, to the ground condens'd The vapours throws. Where creeping waters ooze, Where marshes stagnate, and where rivers wind, 1090 Clufter the rolling fogs, and fwim along The dufky mantled lawn. Mean while the moon Full-orb'd, and breaking thro' the fcattered clouds, Shews her broad vifage in the crimfon'd eaft. Turn'd to the sun direct, her spotted disk, 1095 Where mountains rife, umbrageous dales descend, And caverns deep, as optic tube descries, A smaller earth, gives us his blaze again, Void of its flame, and sheds a softer day. Now thro' the paffing cloud she seems to stoop, 1100 Now up the pure cerulean rides fublime. Wide the pale deluge floats, and streaming mild O'er the sky'd mountain to the shadowy vale, While rocks and floods reflect the quivering gleam, The whole air whitens with a boundless tide 1105 Of filver radiance, trembling round the world.

Bur when half blotted from the sky her light,
Fainting, permits the starry fires to burn
With keener lustre thro' the depth of heaven;
Or near extinct her deaden'd orb appears,
And scarce appears, of sickly beamless white;

Oft in this season, filent from the north A blaze of meteors shoots: ensweeping first The lower skies, they all at once converge High to the crown of heaven, and all at once Relapsing quick as quickly reascend, And mix, and thwart, extinguish, and renew, All ather coursing in a maze of light.

Now black, and deep, the night begins to fall, A shade immense. Sunk in the quenching gloom, Magnificent and vaft, are heaven and earth. Order confounded lies; all beauty void; Distinction lost; and gay variety One universal blot: such the fair power Of light, to kindle and create the whole. Drear is the flate of the benighted wretch, Who then, bewilder'd, wanders thro' the dark, 1150 Full of pale fancies, and chimeras huge; Nor vifited by one directive ray, From cottage streaming, or from airy hall. Perhaps impatient as he stumbles on, Struck from the root of flimy rushes, blue, 1155 The wild-fire fcatters round, or gather'd trails A length of flame deceitful o'er the moss: Whither decoy'd by the fantastic blaze, Now loft and now renew'd, he finks abforpt, Rider and horse, amid the miry gulf: While still, from day to day, his pining wife, And plaintive children his return await, In wild conjecture loft. At other times, Sent by the better Genius of the night, Innoxious, gleaming on the horse's mane, 1165 The meteor fits; and flews the narrow path, That winding leads thro' pits of death, or elfe Instructs him how to take the dangerous ford.

In Summer he, beneath the living shade, 1320 Such as o'er frigid Tempe wont to wave, Or Hemus cool, reads what the Muse, of these Perhaps, has in immortal numbers fung; Or what she dictates writes : and, oft an eye Shot round, rejoices in the vigorous year. When Autumn's yellow luftre gilds the world, And tempts the fickled swain into the field, Seiz'd by the general joy, his heart diftends With gentle throes; and, thro' the tepid gleams Deep musing, then he best exerts his song. 1330 Even Winter wild to him is full of blis. The mighty tempest, and the hoary waste, Abrupt, and deep, ftretch'd o'er the buried earth, Awake to folemn thought. At night the skies, Disclos'd, and kindled, by refining frost, 1335 Pour every luftre on th' exalted eye. A friend, a book the stealing hours secure, And mark them down for wisdom. With swift wing, O'er land and fea imagination roams; Or truth, divinely breaking on his mind, Elates his being, and unfolds his powers; Or in his breaft heroic virtue burns. The touch of kindred too and love he feels; The modest eye, whose beams on his alone Ecftatic shine; the little strong embrace Of pratling children, twin'd around his neck, And emulous to please him, calling forth The fond parental foul. The subject proposed. Address to the Earl of Wilming-Ton. First approach of Winter. According to the natural course of the season, various storms described. Rain. Wind. Snow. The driving of the snows: A Man perishing among them; whence restections on the wants and miseries of human life. The wolves descending from the Alps and Apennines. A winter-evening described: as spent by philosophers; by the country-people; in the city. Frost. A view of Winter swithin the polar Circle. A thaw. The whole concluding with moral restections on a future state.

WINTER.

OEE, WINTER comes, to rule the varied year, Sullen, and fad, with all his rifing train; Vapours, and Clouds, and Storms. Be these my theme, These, that exalt the soul to solemn thought, And heavenly musing. Welcome, kindred glooms! 5 Cogenial horrors, hail! with frequent foot, Pleas'd have I, in my chearful morn of life, When nurs'd by careless folitude I liv'd, And fung of Nature with unceafing joy, Pleas'd have I wander'd thro' your rough domain; 10 Tnod the pure virgin-snows, myself as pure; Heard the winds roar, and the big torrent burft; Or feen the deep fermenting tempest brew'd, In the grim evening-fky. Thus pass'd the time, Till thro' the lucid chambers of the fouth Look'd out the joyous Spring, look'd out, and smil'd.

To thee, the patron of ber first essay,
The Muse, O WILMINGTON! renews her song.
Since has she rounded the revolving year:
Skimm'd the gay Spring; on eagle-pinions borne, 20
Attempted thro the Summer-blaze to rise;
Then swept o'er Autumn with the shadowy gale;
And now among the wint'ry clouds again,

Roll'd in the doubling florm, she tries to foar; To fwell her note with all the rushing winds; 25 To fuit her founding cadence to the floods; As is her theme, her numbers wildly great: Thrice happy! could she fill thy judging ear With bold description, and with manly thought. Nor art thou skill'd in awful schemes alone, 30 And how to make a mighty people thrive: But equal goodness, found integrity, A firm unshaken uncorrupted foul Amid a fliding age, and burning strong, Not vainly blazing for thy country's weal, 35 A steady spirit regularly free; Thefe, each exalting each, the statesman light Into the patriot; these, the public hope And eye to thee converting, bid the Muse Record what envy dares not flattery call. 40

Now when the chearless empire of the sky
To Capricorn the Centaur Archer yields,
And sierce Aquarius, stains th' inverted year;
Hung o'er the farthest verge of heaven, the sun
Scarce spreads o'er ather the dejected day.

Faint are his gleams, and ineffectual shoot
His struggling rays, in horizontal sines,
Thro' the thick air; as cloth'd in cloudy storm,
Weak, wan, and broad, he skirts the southern sky;
And, soon-descending, to the long dark night,
Wide-shading all, the prostrate world resigns.
Nor is the night unwish'd; while vital heat,

Light, life, and joy, the dubious day forfake. Mean time, in fable cincture, shadows vast, Deep-ting'd and damp, and congregated clouds, 55 And all the vapoury turbulence of heaven Involve the face of things. Thus Winter falls, A heavy gloom oppressive o'er the world, Thro' Nature shedding influence malign, And rouses up the seeds of dark disease. The foul of Man dies in him, loathing life, And black with more than melancholy views. The cattle droop; and o'er the furrowed land, Fresh from the plough, the dun-discolour'd flocks. Untended spreading, crop the wholesome root. Along the woods, along the moorish fens, Sighs the fad Genius of the coming storm; And up among the loofe disjointed cliffs, And fractur'd mountains wild, the brawling brook And cave, prefageful, fend a hollow moan, Resounding long in listening Fancy's ear.

THEN comes the father of the tempest forth,
Wrapt in black glooms. First joyless rains obscure
Drive thro' the mingling skies with vapour foul;
Dash on the mountain's brow, and shake the woods,
That grumbling wave below. Th' unsightly plain 76
Lies a brown deluge; as the low-bent clouds
Pour slood on slood, yet unexhausted still
Combine, and deepening into night shut up
The day's fair face. The wanderers of heaven, 80
Each to his home, retire; save those that love

To take their pastime in the troubled air,
Or skimming slutter round the dimply pool.
The cattle from th' untasted fields return,
And ask, with meaning low, their wonted stalls, 85
Or ruminate in the contiguous shade.
Thither the household feathery people croud,
The crested cock, with all his female train,
Pensive, and dripping; while the cottage-hind
Hangs o'er th' enlivening blaze, and taleful there 90
Recounts his simple frolic: much he talks,
And much he laughs, nor recks the storm that blows
Without, and rattles on his humble roof.

Wide o'er the brim, with many a torrent swell'd,
And the mix'd ruin of its banks o'erspread,

At last the rous'd-up river pours along:
Resistless, roaring, dreadful, down it comes,
From the rude mountain, and the mossy wild,
Tumbling thro' rocks abrupt, and sounding far;
Then o'er the sanded valley sloating spreads,
Calm, sluggish, silent; till again, constrain'd
Between two meeting hills, it bursts a way,
Where rocks and woods o'erhang the turbid stream;
There gathering triple force, rapid, and deep,

104
It boils, and wheels, and foams, and thunders through

NATURE! great parent! whose unceasing hand Rolls round the seasons of the changeful year, How mighty, how majestic, are thy works! With what a pleasing dread they swell the soul! That sees astonish'd! and astonish'd sings!
Ye too, ye winds! that now begin to blow,
With boisterous sweep, I raise my voice to you.
Where are your stores, ye powerful beings! say,
Where your aërial magazines reserv'd,
To swell the brooding terrors of the storm?
In what far-distant region of the sky,
Hush'd in deep silence, sleep ye when 'tis calm?

WHEN from the pallid sky the fun descends, With many a fpot, that o'er his glaring orb Uncertain wanders, stain'd; red fiery streaks Begin to flush around. The reeling clouds Stagger with dizzy poife, as doubting yet Which mafter to obey: while rifing flow, Blank, in the leaden-colour'd east, the moon Wears a wan circle round her blunted horns. Seen thro' the turbid fluctuating air, The flars obtuse emit a shivered ray; Or frequent feem to shoot athwart the gloom, And long behind them trail the whitening blaze. Snatch'd in fhort eddies, plays the wither'd leaf; 130 And on the flood the dancing feather floats. With broaden'd noffrils to the fky up-turn'd, The conscious heifer snuffs the stormy gale. Even as the matron, at her nightly task, With pensive labour draws the flaxen thread, The wasted taper and the crackling slame Foretel the blaft. But chief the plumy race, The tenants of the fky, its changes speak.

Retiring from the downs, where all day long They pick'd their scanty fare, a blackening train, 140 Of clamorous rooks thick-urge their weary flight, And feek the clofing shelter of the grove; Assiduous, in his bower, the wailing owl Plies his fad fong. The cormorant on high Wheels from the deep, and screams along the land. Loud shrieks the foaring hern; and with wild wing The circling fea-fowl cleave the flaky clouds. Ocean, unequal press'd, with broken tide And blind commotion heaves; while from the shore, Eat into caverns by the reftless wave, And forest-rustling mountain, comes a voice, That folemn founding bids the world prepare. Then issues forth the storm with sudden burst, And hurls the whole precipitated air, Bown, in a torrent. On the passive main 155 Descends th' ethereal force, and with strong gust & Turns from its bettom the discolour'd deep. Thro' the black night that fits immense around, Lash'd into foam, the sierce conflicting brine Seems o'er a thousand raging waves to burn: 160 Mean time the mountain-billows, to the clouds In dreadful tumult fwell'd, furge above furge, Burst into chaos with tremendous roar, And anchor'd navies from their stations drive, Wild as the winds across the howling waste 165 Of mighty waters : now th' inflated wave Straining they scale, and now impetuous shoot Into the fecret chambers of the deep,

Nor less at land the loosen'd tempest reigns. The mountain thunders; and its flurdy fons Stoop to the bottom of the rocks they shade. Lone on the midnight steep, and all aghast, The dark wayfaring stranger breathless toils, And, often falling, climbs against the blast. 180 Low waves the rooted forest, vex'd, and sheds What of its tarnish'd honours yet remain; Dash'd down, and scatter'd, by the tearing wind's Assiduous fury, its gigantic limbs. Thus firuggling thro' the diffipated grove, 183 The whirling tempest raves along the plain; And on the cottage thatch'd, or lordly roof, Keen-fastening, shakes them to the folid base. Sleep frighted flies; and round the rocking dome, For entrance eager, howls the favage blaft. 190 Then too, they fay, thro' all the burthen'd air, Long groans are heard, shrill founds, and distant sighs That, utter'd by the dæmon of the night, Warn the devoted wretch of wo and death

HUGE uproar lords it wide. The clouds commix'd With stars swift gliding sweep along the sky.

All Nature reels. Till Nature's King, who oft Amid tempessuous darkness dwells alone, And on the wings of the careering wind Walks dreadfully serene, commands a calm; 200 Then straight air, sea, and earth are hush'd at once.

As yet 'tis midnight deep. The weary clouds, Slow-meeting, mingle into folid gloom.

Now, while the drowfy world lies loft in fleep,

Let me affociate with the ferious Night, 205

And Contemplation her fedate compeer;

Let me shake off th' intrusive cares of day,

And lay the meddling senses all aside.

Where now, ye lying vanities of life!
Ye ever-tempting, ever-cheating train!
Where are you now? and what is your amount?
Vexation, disappointment, and remorfe.
Sad, sickening thought! and yet deluded Man,
A scene of crade disjointed visions past,
And broken slumbers, rises still resolv'd,
215
With new-ssuffich'd liopes, to run the giddy round.

FATHER of light and life! thou GOOD SUPREME!

O teach me what is good! teach me THYSELF!

Save me from folly, vanity, and vice,

From every low pursuit! and feed my foul

Hid in the hollow of two neighbouring hills,
The billowy tempest whelms; till, upward urg'd,

Of horrid prospect, shag the trackless plain: Nor finds the river, nor the forest, hid Beneath the formless wild: but wanders on From hill to dale, still more and more aftray; Impatient flouncing thro' the drifted heaps, Stung with the thoughts of home; the thoughts of home Rush on his nerves, and call their vigour forth In many a vain attempt. How finks his foul! What black despair, what horror fills his heart? When for the dusky spot, which fancy feign'd 200 His tufted cottage rifing thro' the fnow, He meets the roughness of the middle waste. Far from the tract, and bleft abode of Man: While round him night refiftlefs closes faft, And every tempest, howling o'er his head, Renders the favage wilderness more wild. Then throng the busy shapes into his mind; Of cover'd pits, unfathomably deep, A dire descent! beyond the power of frost. Of faithless bogs; of precipices huge, Smooth'd up with fnow; and, what is land, unknown, What water, of the still unfrozen spring, In the loofe marsh or solitary lake, Where the fresh fountain from the bottom boils. These check his fearful steps; and down he finks 305 Beneath the shelter of the shapeless drift, Thinking o'er all the bitterness of death. Mix'd with the tender anguish Nature shoots Thro' the wrung bosom of the dying Man, His wife, his children, and his friends unfeen. 310

So

In vain for him th' officious wife prepares The fire fair blazing, and the vestment warm; In vain his little children, peeping out Into the mingling form, demand their fire, With tears of artless innocence. Alas! Nor wife, nor children, more shall he behold, Nor friends, nor facred home. On every nerve The deadly Winter seizes; shuts up sense; And, o'er his inmost vitals creeping cold, Lays him along the snows, a stiffened corfe, 320 Stretch'd out, and bleaching in the northern blaft.

An little think the gay licentious proud, Whom pleasure, power, and affluence surround: They, who their thoughtless hours in giddy mirth, And wanton, often cruel, riot waste; Ah little think they, while they dance along, How many feel, this very moment, death -And all the fad variety of pain. How many fink in the devouring flood, Or more devouring flame. How many bleed, By shameful variance betwixt Man and Man. The ceaseless winds blow ice, be my retreat, Between the groaning forest and the shore Beat by the boundless multitude of waves, A rural, shelter'd, solitary scene; Where ruddy fire and beaming tapers join, To chear the gloom. There studious let me sit, And hold high converse with the MIGHTY DEAD; Sages of ancient time, as gods rever'd, As gods beneficent, who bles'd mankind With arts, with arms, and humaniz'd a world. Rous'd at th' inspiring thought, I throw aside The long-liv'd volume; and, deep-musing, hail The facred fhades, that flowly-rifing pass Before my wondering eyes. First Socrates, Who, firmly good in a corrupted state, 440 Against the rage of tyrants fingle stood, Invincible! calm Reason's holy law, That Voice of God within th' attentive mind, Obeying, fearless, or in life, or death: Great moral teacher! Lycurgus then, who bow'd beneath the force Of firiclest discipline, severely wife, All human passions. Following him, I see, 455

As at Thermopylæ he glorious fell, The firm * DEVOTED CHIEF, who prov'd by deeds The hardest lesson which the other taught. Then ARISTIDES lifts his honest front : Spotless of heart, to whom th' unflattering voice 460 Of freedom gave the noblest name of Just; In pure majestic poverty rever'd; Who, even his glory to his country's weal Submitting, fwell'd a haughty + Rival's fame. Rear'd by his care, of fofter ray appears Cimon fweet-foul'd; whose genius, rising strong, Shook off the load of young debauch; abroad The scourge of Persian pride, at home the friend Of every worth and every splendid art; Modest, and simple, in the pomp of wealth. Then the last worthies of declining GREECE, Late-call'd to glory, in unequal times, Pensive, appear. The fair Corinthian boast, TIMOLEON, happy temper ! mild, and firm, Who wept the Brother while the Tyrant bled. 475 And, equal to the best, the THEBAN PAIR, Whose virtues, in beroic concord join'd, Their country rais'd to freedom, empire, fame. Where art thou, Hammond? thou the darling pride,
The friend and lover of the tuneful throng! 355
Ah why, dear youth, in all the blooming prime
Of vernal genius, where disclosing fast
Each active worth, each manly virtue lay,
Why wert thou ravish'd from our hope so soon?
What now avails that noble thirst of same, 560
Which stung thy fervent breast? that treasur'd store
Of knowledge, early gain'd? that eager zeal
To serve thy country, glowing in the band
Of YOUTHFUL PATRIOTS, who sustain her name?
What now, alas! that life-dissusing charm 565

Of sprightly wit? that rapture for the Muse,
That heart of friendship, and that soul of joy,
Which bade with softest light thy virtues smile?
Ah! only shew'd, to check our fond pursuits,
And teach our humbled hopes that life is vain! 570

THUS in some deep retirement would I pass The winter-glooms, with friends of pliant foul, Or blithe, or folemn, as the theme inspir'd: With them would fearch, if Nature's boundless frame Was call'd, late-rifing from the void of night, 573 Or forung eternal from th' ETERNAL MIND; Its life, its laws, its progress, and its end. Hence larger prospects of the beauteous whole Would, gradual, open on our opening minds; And each diffusive harmony unite 580 In full perfection, to th' aftonish'd eye. Then would we try to fcan the moral World, Which, the' to us it feems embroil'd, moves on In higher order; fitted, and impell'd, By Wisdom's finest hand, and issuing all 585 In general Good. The fage hiftoric Muse Should next conduct us thro' the deeps of time: Shew us how empire grew, declin'd, and fell, In fcatter'd flates; what makes the nations smile, Improves their foil, and gives them double funs; 590% And why they pine beneath the brightest skies, In Nature's richest lap. As thus we talk'd, Our hearts would burn within us, would inhale That portion of divinity, that ray

Of purest heaven, which lights the public foul Of patriots, and of heroes. But if doom'd, In powerless humble fortune, to repress These ardent risings of the kindling soul; Then, even superior to ambition, we Would learn the private virtues; how to glide Thro' shades and plains, along the smoothest stream Of rural life : or fnatch'd away by hope, Thro' the dim spaces of futurity, With earnest eye anticipate those scenes Of happiness, and wonder; where the mind, In endless growth and infinite ascent, Rifes frow state to state, and world to world. But when with these the serious thought is foil'd, We, shifting for relief, would play the shapes Of frolic fancy; and incessant form Those rapid pictures, that assembled train Of fleet ideas, never join'd before, Whence lively Wit excites to gay surprise; Or folly-painted Humour, grave himfelf, Calls Laughter forth, deep-shaking every nerve. 615

MEAN time the village rouses up the fire;
While well attested, and as well believ'd,
Heard solemn, goes the goblin story round;
Till superstitious horror creeps o'er all.
Or, frequent in the sounding hall, they wake 620.
The rural gambol. Rustic mirth goes round;
The simple joke that takes the shepherd's heart,
Easily pleas'd; the long loud laugh, sincere;

T

The kifs, fnatch'd hafty from the fide-long maid,
On purpose guardless, or pretending sleep: 625.
The leap, the slap, the haul; and, shook to notes
Of native music, the respondent dance.
Thus jocund sleets with them the winter-night.

THE city swarms intense. The public haunt, Full of each theme, and warm with mix'd discourse. Hums indistinct. The sons of riot flow Down the loofe stream of false inchanted joy, To swift destruction. On the rankled soul The gaming fury falls; and in one gulf Of total ruin, honour, virtue, peace, 635 Friends, families, and fortune, headlong fink. Up-fprings the dance along the lighted dome, Mix'd, and evolv'd, a thousand sprightly ways. The glittering court effuses every pomp; The circle deepens: beam'd from gaudy robes, 640 Tapers, and sparkling gems, and radiant eyes, A foft effulgence o'er the palace waves : While, a gay infect in bis summer-shine, The fop, light-fluttering, spreads his mealy wings.

DREAD o'er the scene, the ghost of Hamlet stalks;
Othello rages; poor Monimia mourns;
And Belvidera pours her soul in love.
Terror alarms the breast; the comely tear
Steals o'er the cheek: or else the Comic Muse
Holds to the world a picture of itself,
And raises sly the sair impartial laugh.

Sometimes she lifts her strain, and paints the scenes Of beauteous life; whate'er can deck mankind, Or charm the heart, in generous Bevil * shew'd. V

O THOU, whose wisdom, solid yet refin'd, 655 Whose patriot-virtues, and consummate skill To touch the finer springs that move the world, Join'd to whate'er the Graces can bestow, And all Apollo's animating fire, Give thee, with pleafing dignity, to shine At once the guardian, ornament; and joy, Of polish'd life; permit the Rural Muse, O CHESTERFIELD, to grace with thee her fong ! Ere to the shades again she humbly slies, Indulge her fond ambition, in thy train, (For every Muse has in thy train a place), To mark thy various full-accomplish'd mind: To mark that spirit, which, with British scorn, Rejects th' allurements of corrupted power; That elegant politeness, which excels, 670 Even in the judgment of prefumptuous France, The boafted manners of her shining court; That wit, the vivid energy of fense, The truth of Nature, which, with Attie point, And kind well-temper'd fatire, 'smoothly keen, 675 Steals thro' the foul, and without pain corrects. Or, rifing thence with yet a brighter flame, O let me hail thee on some glorious day,

* A character in the Conscious Lovers, written by Sir RICHARD STEELE,

When to the listening senate, ardent, croud
BRITANNIA's sons to hear her pleaded cause. 680
Then dress'd by thee, more amiably fair,
Truth the fost robe of mild persuasion wears:
Thou to assenting reason giv'st again
Her own enlightened thoughts; call'd from the heart,
Th' obedient passions on thy voice attend; 685
And even reluctant party seels a while
Thy gracious power: as thro' the varied maze
Of eloquence, now smooth, now quick, now strong,
Prosound and clear, you roll the copious slood.

To thy lov'd haunt return, my happy Muse: 690 For now, behold, the joyous winter-days, Frosty, succeed; and thro' the blue serene, For fight too fine, th' ethereal nitre flies; Killing infectious damps, and the spent air Storing afresh with elemental life. Close crouds the shining atmosphere; and binds Our strengthened bodies in its cold embrace, Constringent; feeds, and animates our blood; Refines our spirits, thro' the new-strung nerves, In fwifter fallies darting to the brain; 700 Where fits the foul, intense, collected, cool, Bright as the fkies, and as the feafon keen. All Nature feels the renovating force Of Winter, only to the thoughtless eye In ruin feen. The frost-concocted glebe Draws in abundant vegetable foul, And gathers vigour for the coming year.

190 WINTER.

A stronger glow sits on the lively cheek
Of ruddy fire: and luculent along
The purer rivers slow; their sullen deeps,
710
Transparent, open to the shepherd's gaze,
And murmur hoarser at the sixing frost.

WHAT art thou, frost? and whence are thy keen stores Deriv'd, thou secret all-invading power, Whom even th' illufive fluid cannot fly? Is not thy potent energy, unfeen, Myriads of little falts, or hook'd, or shap'd Like double wedges, and diffus'd immense Thro' water, 'earth, and æther? Hence at eve. Steam'd eager from the red horizon round, 726 With the herce rage of Winter deep fuffus'd, An icy gale, oft shifting, o'er the pool Breathes a blue film, and in its mid career Arrefts the bickering stream. The loofened ice, Let down the flood, and half dissolv'd by day, Ruftles no more; but to the fedgy bank Fast grows, or gathers round the pointed stone, A crystal pavement, by the breath of heaven Cemented firm; till, feiz'd from shore to shore, The whole imprison'd river growls below. 730 Loud rings the frozen earth, and hard reflects A double noise; while, at his evening-watch, The village-dog deters the nightly thief; The heifer lows; the distant water-fall Swells in the breeze; and, with the hafty tread 735 Of traveller, the hollow-founding plain

Lash Bran Shakes from afar. The full ethereal round, Infinite worlds disclosing to the view, Shines out intenfely keen; and, all one cope Of starry glitter, glows from pole to pole. From pole to pole the rigid influence falls, Thro' the still night, incessant, heavy, strong, And feizes Nature fast. It freezes on ; Till morn, late-rifing o'er the drooping world, Lifts her pale eye unjoyous. Then appears The various labour of the filent night: Prone from the dripping eave, and dumb cascade, Whose idle torrents only seem to roar, The pendent icicle; the frost-work fair, Where transient hues, and fancy'd figures rise; Wide-spouted o'er the hill, the frozen brook, A livid tract, cold-gleaming on the morn; The forest bent beneath the plumy wave; And by the frost refin'd the whiter snow, Incrusted hard, and founding to the tread Of early shepherd, as he pensive seeks His pining flock, or from the mountain-top, Pleas'd with the flippery furface, fwift descends.

On blithsome frolics bent, the youthful swains,
While every work of Man is laid at rest,
Fond o'er the river croud, in various sport
And revelry dissolv'd; where mixing glad,
Happiest of all the train! the raptur'd boy
Lashes the whirling top. Or, where the Rhine
Branch'd out in many a long canal extends,
765

From every province fwarming, void of care, Batavia rushes forth; and as they fweep. On founding skates, a thousand different ways, In eircling poife, fwift as the winds, along, The then gay land is maddened all to joy. Nor less the northern courts, wide o'er the snow. Pour a new pomp. Eager, on rapid fleds, Their vigorous youth in bold contention wheel The long refounding course. Mean time, to raise The manly strife, with highly blooming charms, 775 Flush'd by the feason, Scandinavia's dames, Or Russia's buxom daughters glow around.

Pure, quick, and sportful, is the wholesome day; But foon claps'd. The horizontal fun, Broad o'er the fouth, hangs at his utmost noon: 780 And, ineffectual, ftrikes the gelid cliff : His azure gloss the mountain still maintains. Nor feels the feeble touch. Perhaps the vale Relents a while to the reflected ray : Or from the forest falls the cluster'd snow, 785 Myriads of gems, that in the waving gleam Gay-twinkle as they scatter. Thick around Thunders the sport of those, who with the gun, And dog impatient bounding at the shot, Worse than the season, desolate the fields; And, adding to the ruins of the year, Distress the footed or the feathered game.

Ill fares the bark with trembling wretches charg'd, That, toss'd amid the floating fragments, moors Beneath the shelter of an icy ise, While night o'erwhelms the fea, and horror looks More horrible. Can human force endure Th' affembled mischiefs that besiege them round? Where, o'er the rock, the fcarcely waving pine Fills the brown shade with a religious awe. And ye, whose bolder note is heard afar, 45 Who shake th' aftonish'd world, lift high to heaven 'Th' impetuous fong, and fay from whom you rage. His praise, ye brooks, attone, we trembling rills ; And let me catch it as I muse along. Ye headlong torrents, rapid, and profound; 50 Ye fofter floods, that lead the humid maze Along the vale; and thou, majestic main, A fecret world of wonders in thyfelf, Sound His stupendous praise; whose greater voice Or bids you roar, or bids your roarings fall. Soft-roll your incense, herbs, and fruits, and flowers, In mingled clouds to HIM; whose fun exalts, Whose breath perfumes you, and whose pencil paints. Ye forests bend, ye harvests wave, to HIM; Breathe your still song into the reaper's heart, 60 As home he goes beneath the joyous moon. Ye that keep watch in heaven, as earth affeep Unconscious lies, effuse your mildest beams, Ye constellations, while your angels strike, Amid the spangled sky, the filver lyre. Great fource of day! best image here below Of thy Creator, ever pouring wide, From world to world, the vital ocean round, On Nature write with every beam His praise. The thunder rolls : be hush'd the prostrate world ; 70

While cloud to cloud returns the folemn hymn. Bleat out afresh, ye hills: ye mossy rocks, Retain the found: the broad responsive lowe, Ye valleys, raife; for the GREAT SHEVHERD reigns; And his unsuffering kindom yet will come. 75 Ye woodlands all, awake : a boundless song Burst from the groves ! and when the restless day, Expiring, lays the warbling world afleep, Sweetest of birds ! fweet-Philomela, charm The listening shades, and teach the night Hrs praise. Ye chief, for whom the whole creation fmiles, 81 At once the head, the heart, and tongue of all, Crown the great hymn I in fwarming cities vast, Assembled men, to the deep organ join 85 The long resounding voice, oft breaking clear, At folemn paufes, through the swelling base; And, as each mingling flame increases each, In one united ardor rise to heaven. Or if you rather chuse the rural shade, And find a fane in every facred grove; There let the shepherd's flute, the virgin's lay, The prompting feraph, and the poet's lyre, Still fing the God of SEASONS, as they roll. For me, when I forget the darling theme, Whether the bloffom blows, the fummer-ray Ruffets the plain, inspiring Autumn gleams; Or Winter rifes in the blackening east;

Be my tongue mute, may fancy paint no more, And, dead to joy, forget my heart to beat!

SHOULD fate command me to the farthest verge Of the green earth, to distant barbarous climes, 101 Rivers unknown to fong; where first the fun Gilds Indian mountains, or his fetting beam Flames on th' Atlantic isles; 'tis nought to me: Since God is ever present, ever felt, 105 In the void waste as in the city full; And where HE vital breathes, there must be joy. When even at last the folemn hour shall come, And wing my mystic slight to future worlds, I chearful will obey; there, with new powers, Will rifing wonders fing: I cannot go Where UNIVERSAL LOVE not smiles around, Sustaining all you orbs and all their sons; From feeming evil still educing good, And better thence again, and better still, 115 In infinite progression. But I lose Myself in HIM, in LIGHT INEFFABLE! Come then, expressive filence, muse His praise.
